Mr. W. T. Jones relates his experience to This GAZETTE:

"Yes, sin, a month ago I was a walking shadow but to-day I feel like another man, said Mr. W. T. Jones, who resides at the Spring Palace hotel, corner Eleventh and Main streets, to a GAZETTE reporter. "My friends had all given me up and said I was going to die with coesunorion, and the doctors said my lungs were affected, and in fact Phat given up lope myself. I read Dr. J. S. Curtis' advertisement in This GAZETTE and on Christmas eve last I placed myself unler his treatment. He examined me carefully and said I had calarri, and convinced me that he was right in a few minutes. The remedies he used have acted likes a charm. I have gained over 18 pounds in weight and have a good appetite. When I commenced Dr. Curtis' treatment I could not cut anything and my voice was only a wilsper. I am grateful to God and Dr. Curtis for my renewed strength, and only hope that others who are similarly afflicted may be induced by my statements to place themselves under the treatment of Dr. Curtis."

Mr. Jones speke and acted like a man who felt the force of his words, and evidently realfres and appreciates the great benefit he has received. Dr. Curtis rooms at the Natistorium Building are crowded with the afflicted of all ages and conclutors, and his work is commanding the highest admiration.

'A LADY'S EXPERIENCE.

I have suffered with catarrh and deafness ever since I was four years old as a result of grariet fever. Special to the Gazette.

Cartillor, Mo., Feb. 11.—The family of Charles Dunnelly, consisting of himself, his wife and flye children, are suffering from what is believed to be the solemn curse of an old hag known to residents of this section as "Granny Spires." Mr. Dunnelly is a farmer of extensive landed possessions and the owner of a number of small houses scattered promiscuously over his farms. In one of these Granny Spires has dwelt rent free for years. She was reputed a fortune teller of great powers and the little hut wherein she dwelt was known the country. teller of great powers and the little hut wherein she dwelt was known the country round as the "devil's haunt." Some time ago Mr. Dunnelly wanted to tear down the hut to replace it with a modern house. In vain Granny Spires wept and implored him to leave the hut stand, but it was an eye-sore and he stood firm. He offered her another and a better house in lieu of it, but the old hag was not to be consoled.

When she found prayers unavailing she cursed the man and his family whose charity had given her a home for so many years. The curse was to the effect that death might visit the family, the blight fall upon the crops and adversity take the place of prosperity. Farmer Dunnelly laughed at the curse and hat the house torn down. Granny Spires disappeared and the inci-

But, when the Dunnelly's youngest child But, when the Dunnelly's youngest caud died suddenly, and when two others were at death's door, apparently without warning, and things upon the farm went wrong, a barn burned, a fine horse dropped dead under the saddle, the curse of Granny Spires was recalled. It is the belief of every one cognizant of the circumstances, that the curse is working. Since the old that the curse is working. Since the old witch was ousted from her former home, Mr. Dunnelly has been affileted in many ways. When yesterday a second child died, after a brief illness which the attending physician did not deem serious, the neighbors were highly wrought up. A searching party has been formed, and if Granny Spires is found it will go hard with her if she does not raise the curse she placed upon the Dunnellys.

It was promptly indorsed and a committee to solicit subscriptions apointed. The projectors do not ask for a ent until deep water has been secured and mintained for six months. One thousand deliars will be subscribed here. Col. Ful-ton, who exhibits a working model of the proposed plan to the board, estimates that $500,000 will be much to complete the work.
